CNN producer note

weddingchick is the daughter of the light master behind a 90,000-light, multi-household, music-dancing spectacular. The show is controlled centrally at Jerry Ludy's home in Columbus, Georgia. This year's display features battling snowmen and light strings connecting the homes. The photo shown here is from last year. Tune in to 90.1 FM to hear the music; it took Jerry 3 weeks to program each song. Donations go to charity.

Lights, Lights and more Lights surround the Ludy's home during the Holiday season. Over 90,000 lights, operated by a computer program, create a musical winter wonderland for all to watch in amazement. Several animated features such as lighted snowballs being tossed over the road from one 7 foot snowman to another and then on to another in the neighbor's yard. This continues on to the second neighbor's house, which creates a three snowman snowball fight. More excitement is experienced with a 35 foot long animated Santa, Sleigh and Eight reindeer on top of the house. Santa is tossing presents from the sleigh over the reindeer into the chimney. This does not stop here, because Santa also tossing presents backwards off the roof and they fall onto a trampoline and bounce back over the adjoining neighbor's house and into their chimney.

With all of the excitement, the spirit of Christmas is found in the center of the display with a scene of the Nativity. The Lights all around are shining to portray that Jesus is the Light of the World and that He is the reason for this season of celebration.

The Ludy's bring a smile to all children and the child at heart. This will be the second year that they are promoting the Make-A-Wish foundation for children with life threatening diseases. Santa has a donation box available on site for all that wish to donate to such a worthy cause.

On the weekends, Santa makes an appearance to the Ludy's home and greets all that pass by. Many even stop and spend a few moments with Santa to give him that special wish of what they want for Christmas. Joy comes to those that believe. Why is it that Christmas is the only time of the year that we have a warm friendly feeling in our hearts for all around, when we could have it year round. The Ludy's home has Christmas through out the year. Santa is always looking for ways to bring a smile on the faces of all children.
